The BOX. RICHARD WENT TO THE HON. THOMAS IL.
BENTON.

SYDEMEAN, DEAT Philadelphia, |
March 26, 1853.

My Dear Sir.—Employments in planting and transplanting trees and shrule upon my grounds, and transplanting trees are to the copy of your interesting letter to the people of Missouri, on the central national highway from the Missispip to the Pacific, which you had the goodness to send me. In sitting down to acknowledge it now, it do so not with any the less cordinity and thankfulness, but perhaps more, as the delay has given me more time to this of it. I read the whole pamphlet when it first came, and found it are released to the control of the control o eenth century an accumulation of more inhabitants in the same space than was known in any other part In the same space than was known in any other part of Europe, of more industry than was ever found elsewhere, and of more national wealth than was ever possessed by the same number of men. So says Lord Brougham in one of his works; and he says, also, that the splendor and power of Holland were the consequences not of any natural advantages, but a great variety of defects in her climate and situation. These put man upon his own efforts in all also, that the splender and power of Holland were the consequences not of any natural advantages, but a great variety of defects in her climate and situation. These put man upon his own efforts in all mannea of ways, open by any possibility to his enterprise and industry.

Now what would the making of this railroad to the Pacific, which you recommend by such comprehensive, cogent, and animating views—what, in truth, would it be, compared to what the Dutch have done, even if, as yon intimate, the United States were to employ fifty thousand laborers upon it? Almost as nothing. The Dutch, as Voltaire said of them, scooped their country out of the sea. It was like a new creation. Having no country, they made one for themselves that produced the marvels recognited. God and nature gave us a country of immense natural fertility and advantages in all respects; yet, comparatively, we sleep over them, wotwithstanding all we say of ourselves, and the mary things we have really done very honorable to us, as far as we have gone. But nations, like individuals, have duties commensurate with their situations, and it has ever been the maxim of an ambition that aspires to durable superiority to consider nothing done while anything to which wisdom and honor prempts remains undone. To my vision, as to yours, eur inducements to construct this national highway to the Pacific are urgent. Taken in the high sense of national duty, pride, and interest, the inducements are quite mandatory. Not a month, not a day should be lost towards it. From those to whom much is given much is expected.

We have got an incalculably important dominion upon the Pacific, and we shall lose it if we do not set about protecting it in earnest. War will come upon us one of these days. It will come sooner or later, from some of the causes which produce all wars, while human passions remain; and it may come like a thief in the night. It is no part of prude ce, however flattering it may be to our self-complacency, to rest on the belief that other nations are afra Onio River.—Low Water.—On last Saturday the depth of water in the channel of the Obio river, at Pitt-burg, was only thirty loches None-but the smallest boats could pass down to Cootmant, and freights were thirty cents per one hundred pounds, and advancing. We also learn that on the bars below Cincinnati the water is too shallow for any but the smallest class of boats, and freights were going up. the effect must be to send all of the merchandise from Baltimore I'h ladelphia and New York, destined to St. Louis and points further south, via Chicago, the canal, and Illinois river. The water in the latter river is abundant for first class boats, and no prespect of any hindrance to navigation for many weeks, if at all, this season.—Chicago Tribune, June 24.

Affairs in Buenog Ayres.

[From the British Packst, April 2]
Of manufactured goods, the importation of the menth under review has been inconsiderable; but as the effective demand or actual consumption has been still less, there is a positive addition to existing stocks, that is much to be regretted; as it only depresses the general market, entailing a direct loss on both importer and retail dealer, without a proportionate or appreciable benefit to the ultimate consumer.

Foreign manufacturers, we presume, reason in the following manner:—That goods once prepared for the River Plate market may as well be forwarded to their destination, so as to be in readiness when wanted. They are only dead stock in England, for example, and the additional amount of freight and charges is balanced by the chances of a sale.

Were they new articles, or the only articles of the same kind in the market of their destination, this argument would be plausible; and the probabilities of the adventure a legitimate problem of mercantile calculation. But circumstances alter cases, and if the market be supplied, and abundantly supplied, with the same or similar goods, the hazards of the adventure are no longer confined to the direct remittance, but react on the whole previously existing stocks. This has been the effect of the late arrivals, and must continue to be the consequence so long as the present state of things lasts.

Some inquiries were being made for the interior provinces, but the decree declaring the city in a state of rigorous siege, with the consequence looking of the custom house, prevented their execution at the moment; and it is not unlikely that the parties interested may have had recourse to Montevideo, or some other point, where the articles could be procured. By a recent decree, the government has re-opened the custom house, both for shipping and discharging; an arrangement that ought not to be deviated from, except in cases of extreme emergency. In attention also to our exceptional circumstances, it has declared the por

A DEAD INVANY FOUND FIGATING IN THE RYEER—Coroner Wilhelm yesterday morning held an irquest at Pier No. 20, North river, on the body of a newly born male infant, found floating in the river at that pier. The child was wrapped up it, a piece of muslin. Dr. Blumenthal made a post morten examination of the body, and ascertained that the child had lived. The jury rendered the following verdict:—"That said male infant was alive when born, and came to its death from some cause unknown to the jury."

SUICIDE BY HANGING.—Coroner O'Donnell held an inquest on the body of A P. Post a dentist, who committed suicide at No. 71 Crosby street. The evidence is the case want to show that deceased placed a towel about his neck and fastening one end to the bed post, leaned forward and thus accomplished his death by strangulation. The deceased was a sing e man of about 55 years of age, and resided in Connecticat, being on a visit to this city for medical treatment and was unlar the care of Dr. Bostsick. A verdict was rendered of "Suicide, by banging."
